- (i) derivatives;
- (ii) foreign exchange contracts; and
- (iii) securities; and

(b) deal in a financial product by:

- (i) arranging for another person to apply for, acquire, vary or dispose of financial products in respect of the following classes of financial products:

- (A) derivatives;
- (B) foreign exchange contracts; and
- (C) securities;

to retail and wholesale clients.

Who will provide me with financial services?

Services are provided by our employees, for and on behalf of LTG GoldRock.

How will financial product advice be provided to me?

Our employees may provide you with advice through a number of means including:

- In Person
- Email / Website
- Telephone
- Newsletter

Do you provide general or personal financial product advice?

LTG GoldRock employees provide general financial product advice only. This means that the advice has not been prepared by taking into account your personal investment objectives, financial situation or particular needs.

Before acting on any general advice, you need to decide whether it is appropriate for your individual financial situation. If you are in any doubt, you should consult with a licensed investment adviser, financial planner, or accountant before making an investment or trading decision.

How will these services be provided?

Upon becoming a member of LTG GoldRock, clients will have access to online educational material and a members’ forum, where they will be taught about the financial markets, and the strategies LTG GoldRock employ to trade it.

This advice relates only to LTG GoldRock moderator opinion and is not to be construed as personal advice which individuals should follow.

We will also refer you to other companies (brokers) who provide trading platforms through which you can obtain the financial products you learn about through LTG GoldRock.

What risks are involved in trading the financial products we may advise you on?

The risk involved varies greatly depending on the instrument traded. Investing in ASX top 200 stocks for instance carries far less risk than trading speculatively in currencies and derivatives. The exact risks associated with each product will be outlined in detail in the relevant Product Disclosure Statement (“PDS”), which will be provided to you by your chosen broker.

You should consider the information contained in the relevant PDS before investing in or trading any of the products we may advise you on or refer you to.

When will I receive a Product Disclosure Statement?

Once you have considered any advice we have provided you with, and decided to act on the advice, you will communicate the relevant order or instructions to your chosen broker for execution. Your broker will therefore be the product issuer or product acquirer, and therefore responsible for providing you with a PDS.

When requested we will provide you with general product information. This information should be considered as a guide only, and is not intended to replace the PDS your broker will provide you with.

How will I be charged?

You will be invoiced an initial access fee. This amount includes access to the online trading education and benefits. Certain additional services may attract additional fees but will be fully outlined to you prior to joining those services.

We will explain all fees payable by you prior to any advice or product being offered to you, and an invoice will be provided to you.

What Fees and commissions do you receive?

In addition to fees charged directly to you, LTG GoldRock receives a commission from the broker we refer you to based on the volume of trading you conduct.

You can request further particulars of remuneration, fees and commissions we receive by using the contact details provided above.

Compensation and Insurance Arrangements

At the date of preparing this document, LTG GoldRock has professional indemnity insurance that covers our conduct. This insurance complies with s912B of the Corporations Act 2001.
